Corrugated Plastic

Fluted polypropylene boards are a durable, lightweight alternative to wood, corrugated paper, and solid plastic sheets. Its fluted ribs support both surfaces, making the material light, versatile, and abuse resistant. The product can be converted by a variety of methods including die cutting, scoring and ultra-sonic welding.

Versatility is shown by its wide variety of applications such as:

INDUSTRIAL PACKAGING:

Reusable boxes, shipping containers, bulk bins,
material handling bins, and partitions

SIGNAGE:

Pole signs, real estate signs, election signs,
advertisements, and lawn decorations

AGRICULTURAL PACKAGING:

Fruit/vegetable boxes, picking totes,
seafood boxes, and general farm use shelters

Corrugated plastic is also used for automotive parts such as truckliners, toy and furniture components, and office supplies.
